Rationale	It is important for applied social sciences students to develop a coherent personal approach to their practice by integrating the theory and skills learned in the course into a well-developed framework. This requires a significant level of self-awareness. The aim of this unit is, therefore, to introduce students to the theory and skills of ongoing reflective practice as they work towards the integration of existing learning into a well-grounded, coherent and systematic framework. They will be introduced to various action-reflection-integration models, including Christian worldview and multicultural perspectives, and will have the opportunity to apply these models by reflecting on their practice experiences. They will also be equipped to take these reflective skills into their current or future supervision/mentoring relationships.
