Welcome

Dear Social Sciences students,

Welcome to Christian Heritage College. We hope that the time that you study with us will be personally enriching and will help prepare you to serve the particular communities and contexts into which you are vocationally called. As staff, we are fully committed to making your time with us as valuable as possible, while serving to enrich your life and further your personal and academic development.

Social Sciences is a broad field, but at its core is a desire to understand people and to serve them more fully – whether in more individual fields such as human services, counselling, more community-oriented contexts such as community development, youth work, disability, community mental health and chaplaincy.

Over the last decade, as we have been developing the courses which now make up the Social Sciences at Christian Heritage College, we have become aware of several themes.

The first of these is that spirituality and God's presence are a part of everything we do, informing our thinking and influencing the people we are becoming – as students as well as those working in society. We have a distinctly Christian worldview that infuses our courses and conduct.

Secondly, we desire to have high quality standards of academic knowledge. It is one of our goals that graduates are professionals who are well informed academically and can 'compete in the marketplace' of the world.

Finally, it is our hope that each of us develops to be the people whom we have the potential to be. "The glory of God is a human fully alive," said Irenaus. Social Sciences courses unashamedly address the whole person, challenging each of us in our thinking and our behaviour as we develop to fully become who we were meant to be.

We hope that you engage in your study at all of these levels and leave your course "transformed to transform your world".

Praying that grace may be yours more and more.

1.1   School of Social Sciences staff

Academic staff

Dr Stephen Beaumont (Dean)
Dr Johannes M. Luetz (Undergraduate and Postgraduate Coordinator, Social Sciences courses)
Toni Neil (Undergraduate and Postgraduate Coordinator, Counselling courses)
Jenny House (Supervisor of Counselling Services)
Sonia Thompson (Counselling Practicum Coordinator)
Lorryn Davies

Sessional staff

Each semester the School of Social Sciences contracts sessional lecturers to teach a range of units in its courses. In the main, these are practising professionals who specialise in the areas related to the units which they teach.

Administration staff

Rosanna Seminario (Administration Officer – Monday to Thursday)
Ezoza Rustamova (Administration Officer – Friday)
Sophie Bignill (Social Sciences Practicum Administration)

1.2   School of Social Sciences practices

1.2.1   Attendance and engagement

In addition to the information contained in Section 7.1 of the CHC Student Handbook, the following applies to School of Social Sciences units:

Skills-based units

Students should note that a number of the skills-based units require that they achieve attendance of at least 80%, and some units up to 100%, in order to be eligible for a passing result. When this condition applies, it will be clearly stated in the unit outline that is available on each Moodle™ unit page at the beginning of the semester. If a unit has a presentation assessment, students must attend the class presentations as part of the learning for the unit.

1.2.2 Privacy, confidentiality and informed consent

It is not uncommon for students engaging in Social Sciences courses to reflect on real life experiences and to share personal information and emotions with class members and lecturers in the context of discussion groups and assignment writing, and when engaging in practicum units. It is also not uncommon for students to receive personal information, emotions or experiences from fellow students and from clients in the context of assignment preparation and during practicum placements. Due to the nature of the subject matter that is contained in many units in the Social Sciences courses and in practicum situations, privacy and confidentiality are of the utmost concern. These principles are also subject to legislative requirements that must be observed.

CHC Policy: Student Code of Conduct and CHC Policy: Privacy refer to the issue of confidentiality. These extend to all Social Sciences units. The following expectations regarding privacy and confidentiality also apply:

- Students, lecturers and administration staff members shall respect and serve others with excellence and ethical integrity, strictly avoiding all harm and exploitation.
- Students, lecturers and administration staff members shall demonstrate sensitivity, humility, honesty, integrity and capability towards others. In demonstrating respect for others, they shall avoid undue invasion of privacy in all classroom, assessments and interpersonal interactions.
- Lecturers and administration staff member shall maintain confidentiality and will clearly define and make known to students any specific boundaries required for particular classes and in practicum settings.
- Students, lecturers and administration staff member shall not disclose confidential communications without first discussing the intended disclosure with the person and then securing written permission. In the area of assessment items when writing about a client, work peer or school student a pseudonym will be used to de-identify the client.
- The exception to maintaining confidentiality is with regards to harm to self or others through suicide, homicide, or serious and imminent abuse. It is the duty of the lecturer, administration staff member or student to disclose such information to their designated supervisor and/or to the authorities, where relevant.
- Students, lecturers and administration staff member need to respect the religious convictions and cultural values of others and strive to understand these without imposing their own beliefs and/or values.
- Students need to respect the privacy of organisations and the information held within those organisations, including the legal and ethical requirements regarding the collection and storing of confidential records.

Privacy and confidentiality expectations are explained on the Moodle™ pages for units in which issues of confidentiality are arise. These include skill development units, practitioner formation units, and practicum units. Industry-specific ethical guidelines and codes of conduct are also discussed in the relevant units. When students enrol in these units, it is necessary for students to read a statement on confidentiality on the unit's Moodle™ page, and to agree to this statement (by checking a box) in order to be able to access the unit material.

Students who conduct interviews with others in the course of their enrolment within these units must be aware of the protocols that exist around informed consent and the secure storage of information. The form to be used for the gaining of informed consent from interview subjects is available on the CHC website and includes instructions for its use. The consent of interview subjects must be obtained prior to any interview taking place, and students must ensure that the confidentiality of interview subjects is protected. This includes the use of pseudonyms to de-identify interview subjects, and the use of suitable devices that protect against the sharing or distributing of recordings. The signed informed consent form and the recordings that are conducted in association with assessment tasks are to be provided with the submission of the said assessment tasks. Recordings may be provided on USB drives, or via secure password-protected file sharing. These will be securely stored by CHC for as long as required for the purpose for which they were made, after which they will be erased or destroyed, or, if requested, provided to the interview subject.

Any breach of privacy or confidentiality that occurs during the course of a student's enrolment will be considered as 'Misconduct' under CHC Policy: Student Code of Conduct and will be dealt with according to the provisions of that policy. Questions or concerns regarding privacy or confidentiality can be referred to course coordinators.

1.2.3   Conflict of interest and dual relationship

It is understood that, sometimes, a conflict of interest and/or dual relationships may occur and that students should develop the knowledge and skills to deal with such matters.

Students are responsible for informing their course coordinator or the practicum coordinator (as appropriate) if they believe there to be potential for a conflict of interest and/or dual relationships to arise. The relevant course coordinator or practicum coordinator is responsible for ensuring that processes are in place to deal with such situations after a decision is made about the case at the Board of Studies meeting.

Students are to notify the relevant person via the Disclosure of a Conflict of Interest or Dual Relationship form available from the School of Social Sciences Administration Office.

1.3   Assessment genres

In order to maximise your understanding of the expectations for the different types of assessment tasks, you should make sure you are familiar with the following general guidelines about genres.

Annotated bibliography
An annotated bibliography is a series of entries regarding journal articles, books or other resources that you have read that begin with a citation for the book (like you would find in a reference list) and then some information that summarises the content, limitations and usefulness of the resource (see https://student.unsw.edu.au/annotated-bibliography for an example).
Book review
A book review does the following: • gives a description and summary of the book; • discusses the author so the reader can better understand the book; • evaluates the book giving examples of positive elements and where the book fell short; • analyses the book from the angle of different sources. A book review also contains the essential information about the book itself. (See this website for more information: http://writingcenter.unc.edu/handouts/book-reviews/ for some good tips on writing a book review).
Case study
Writing a case study: A case study is an investigation of a situation, workplace, client, practitioner, etc. that is often presented as a descriptive narrative. It may have specified sections for discussion, analysis and application. Writing a case study requires a case history, discussion, analysis, application, recommendations, evaluation and/or other criteria as specified in the assignment. Responding to a case study: You might be given a case study and asked to respond to it in some way. Often this kind of case study will require discussion, analysis and application. Sometimes you might need to write a case study, this will require a case history, discussion, analysis, application and recommendations or evaluation.
Concept map
A concept map analyses a subject using pictorial or graphic means. The map uses word labels and descriptions or explanations. The map will use lines, arrows, etc., to communicate the relationships between different elements of the map. A concept map task may come with a requirement for a short paper, seminar or handout to accompany it. (See this website for more information: http://www.inspiration.com/visual-learning/concept-mapping)
Essay
An essay is a formal piece of academic writing that communicates a story or an argument. It is linear in nature and has three main parts: introduction; body; and conclusion. The introduction is a signpost to what is to follow in the body and clearly sets out the topic and its limits. The body will clearly explain the issue, set out your argument logically, and back it up with evidence. The conclusion will summarise the journey on which you have taken the reader, clearly restating the conclusion of your argument. It will also contain a reference list. You may be called to write essay with different purposes: reflective; research; comparative; analytical; application; or critical.

Reflective Essay

An essay that is a combination of theoretical and personal perspectives on a topic. It follows the formal conventions of an academic essay, however there will be times where it is appropriate to use first person.

Folio

A folio is a collection of materials that relate to the topic being studied. It may include a range of things such as artefacts, documents, photos, recordings, etc. These may be presented as a 'hard copy' or as a digital or e-folio. It may be that writing tasks will be included in a folio.

Handout

A handout is a document that may include writing, diagrams, artwork, photographs, etc. The purpose is to provide information to the reader in an abbreviated form. It is most likely to accompany a seminar presentation.

Interview schedule

An interview schedule is a list of the questions you intend to ask your interviewees. It is a kind of a script to use so that everyone gets the same questions asked in the same way. The questions are normally derived from and related to prior observations, enquiries or study.

Literature review

A literature review, whether a 'stand-alone' piece or part of a larger work, is a way of reporting on literature that is relevant to a particular area of study. You need to explain what you are studying, why it is important and why you have included the literature that you are reviewing. You need to summarise what the studies you have read are about but you also need to discuss and evaluate the studies, identify what is missing from the studies, provide a conclusion about your reading and, most importantly, explain how you might try to answer some of the missing questions and also identify if there are any gaps in the literature that would suggest further research would be beneficial to the field.

Reflective Journal

A reflective journal is a piece of personal writing in which the writer thinks about a topic through the lens of their own experience and is usually completed in light of relevant literature (eg books, articles, Scripture, etc.). It may be written in first person.

Report

A report is a formal piece of professional or academic writing that communicates the findings of an investigation of some kind. It is similar to an essay but will most likely include an executive summary before the introduction, and contain recommendations between the conclusions and the reference list. It may also have appendices, after the reference list, which includes material that would have been a distraction in the body of the report. In a research report, the body will contain a literature review and a section on methodology.

Research Proposal

A research proposal will give a description of a problem in context and pose a research question. It will contain a short literature review or an annotated bibliography relating to the proposed research. It will also lay out the proposed methodology along with ways of remedying any methodological or ethical pitfalls in the proposed study.

Paper

See Essay and Report.

Poster

A poster is a document that may include writing, diagrams, artwork, photographs, etc. The purpose is to provide information to the reader in an abbreviated form. It is most likely to accompany a seminar or poster presentation.

Seminar

A seminar is a presentation to an individual or a group by an individual or a group. A seminar will present information that could be otherwise presented in an essay, paper or report. A seminar might use visual aids (eg PowerPoint), handouts or posters. A paper might be required alongside a seminar.

Process Report

An annotated transcript is usually accompanied by a process report that describes the processes of the session under discussion. A process report is a written description of the method, techniques and metacommunication that occurred in a therapeutic encounter.

Transcript

A transcript is a verbatim report of what was said in another meeting. This could be used in counselling, pastoral care, interviews, etc. What each person said is transcribed word for word, usually from an audio or video recording, and can be quite time-consuming. Sometimes an annotated transcript is required, where you provide parallel analysis, explanation, comment, reflection, etc., alongside the verbatim transcript.

1.4   Fieldwork placement requirements

Required fieldwork placements

Courses in the School of Social Sciences are designed to meet the accreditation requirements of relevant professional associations. An important aspect of meeting the training standards of each of these bodies is the number of supervised fieldwork placement hours completed by students during their course.

Students in these courses are advised that, while the Practicum Administrator is able to assist with the finding of suitable placements, the ultimate responsibility for locating and organising practicum placements rests with students.

Below is a list of the courses and their required fieldwork placements:

Diploma of Social Science

- Placement Observations: observations in a Human Services organisation
- Field Observations and Report: observational visits in two different organisations

Bachelor of Human Services

- Year 1 - Placement Observations: an observation in a Human Services organisation
    - Field Observations and Report: observational visits in two different organisations
- Year 2 - Practicum I (Semester 1): 100 hours
    - Practicum II (Semester 2): 100 hours
- Year 3 - Practicum III: 200 hours

Practicums I and II are completed in one setting over two semesters. Practicum III is completed in a different setting.

Students must abide by the ACWA Code of Ethics and Practice Guidelines.

Bachelor of Counselling

- Year 1 - Placement Observations: an observation in a Human Services organisation
    - Field Observations and Report: observational visits in two different organisations
- Year 2 - Site visits (5)
    - 15 hours of external professional development
- Year 3 - CO367: 20 hours of client-related contact in a placement setting
    - CO368: 40 face-to-face counselling hours plus 20 hours of client-related contact hours; 7 hours of individual supervision; fortnightly group supervision
    - CO369 and CO370: 40 face-to-face counselling hours plus 20 hours of client-related hours; 7 hours of individual supervision; fortnightly group supervision

For each semester in which students are enrolled in a practicum unit, they also have to attend a fortnightly supervision group.

Students must abide by the PACFA Code of Ethics.

Master of Counselling

- Year 1 - Site visits (5)
  - External Professional Development (15 hours)
- Year 2 - CO667: 20 hours of client-related contact in a placement setting
  - CO668: 40 face-to-face counselling hours plus 20 hours of client-related contact hours; 7 hours of individual supervision; fortnightly group supervision
  - CO669 and CO670: 40 face-to-face counselling hours plus 20 hours of client-related contact hours; 7 hours of individual supervision; fortnightly group supervision

For each semester in which students are enrolled in a practicum unit, they also have to attend a fortnightly supervision group.

Students must abide by the PACFA Code of Ethics.

Safety checks

When students work with children (including infants, children or young people under the age of 18) and/or vulnerable people (including the aged, people with mental illness, people with disabilities, or other designated people), students need to possess some form of safety check. For those working with children a current blue card issued by the Blue Card Services department of the Queensland government (or equivalent from the jurisdiction in which they reside) is needed before they are permitted to commence a practicum unit. For those working with vulnerable people a Police Check issued by the Queensland Police Service (or equivalent from the jurisdiction in which they reside) is needed before they are permitted to commence a practicum unit.

Bachelor of Human Services students working in youth work or family support and child protection will need a blue card. Students working in human behaviour may need a blue card and/or a Police Check.

Counselling students require a blue card.

Information regarding blue cards is available from the School of Social Sciences Practicum Administrator and the Counselling Practicum Coordinator.

The blue card and/or Police check process needs to be completed and recorded by the Practicum Administrator by the end of the student's first semester of study.

Section 2: Rationale for the courses

2.1   Christian worldview integration

As a higher education provider, CHC is committed to academic freedom and to freedom of belief: therefore, CHC will not require students to personally hold a Christian worldview. As a Christian higher education provider, however, CHC is committed to teaching Christian and other worldviews to enable students to know, understand and discuss the beliefs they have freely chosen. Students will also have opportunity to examine how a Christian worldview may impact on life, culture and scholarship. Higher education, such as that which is pursued in the social sciences courses at CHC, continually engages students in the critical analysis of different worldviews and perspectives, as well as examining the implications of this diversity for social sciences theory and practice. Students in the counselling courses are exposed to current knowledge, theory and skills in the fields of counselling and psychotherapy, while being given opportunity to opportunity to reflect on and integrate what they are learning from the perspective of a Bible-based Christ-centred worldview.

2.2   Rationale for the counselling courses

The Bachelor of Counselling and Master of Counselling aim to equip graduates with the knowledge, skills and personal attributes required to work effectively in a variety of faith-based and secular counselling contexts. To achieve this, students' study and learn to apply current theory and practice form the field of counselling and psychotherapy, while being provided with opportunity to reflect on and integrate what they are learning from the perspective of a Bible-based Christ-centred worldview.

The Bachelor of Counselling and Master of Counselling are based on the following core principles:

A holistic understanding of human beings

Students in the counselling courses are exposed to a range of theory and are encouraged to develop a holistic approach to counselling based on the understanding that the human person is an integrated being and that no one approach to counselling has all the answers or is the right approach for every client. Students develop an intentionally integrated understanding of the human person, the basis of human difficulties, and processes of change, growth and healing.

An integrated process-based approach to counselling and counselling training

Rather than being limited to one theoretical approach to counselling, students in the counselling courses learn not only appropriate skills, but the ability to implement a process that holds the potential to mobilise change for clients. Built on trauma-informed principles, this process-based approach then becomes the basis of theoretical integration.

An emphasis on the person of the counsellor and the therapeutic relationship

Rather than teaching students how to counsel, CHC's approach is to make students into counsellors from the inside out. Based on the foundational principles of the Person-centred approach, the counselling courses have a strong emphasis on developing the person of the counsellor. This includes valuing the well-being of the counsellor. Research consistently shows that, above everything else, the therapeutic relationship is the most important factor for change in counselling. Consequently, there is a strong focus on developing therapeutic relationship skills and the core counselling conditions in the counselling courses.

An intentionally relational and experiential learning community

Consistent with the previous principle, the counselling courses utilise pedagogical approaches that are intentionally relational and experiential in orientation. While theoretical and empirically based knowledge is valued and is made available to students, the approach to learning counselling at CHC is primarily an experiential one in which students are given opportunity to personally as well as professionally reflect on the implications and potential application of what they are learning with respect to their own person, relationships and engagement in broader society.

A strong emphasis on counselling skills training and reflective practice based on real-world experience

A further component of the commitment to producing graduates with the capacity to make a meaningful contribution to their clients' growth and well-being involves a strong emphasis within the counselling courses on the acquisition and practice of counselling skills. Skills are developed alongside critically reflective practice that is applied to substantial real-world counselling experience.

A commitment to rigorous academic standards and currency of course content

Although CHC counselling courses are highly experiential in nature with a strong emphasis on the development of the person of the counsellor, they also value and prioritise academic rigour and the importance of staying up to date with emerging trends and findings relating to the fields of counselling and psychotherapy. This includes underpinning all aspects of the counselling courses with the latest research on interpersonal neurobiology and mental health and encouraging students to engage with counselling research.

Intentional engagement with spirituality as it relates to students and the practice of counselling more generally

Recent years have seen a growing awareness of and focus on the importance of spirituality as a dimension of humanness and as a significant potential dimension of the therapeutic relationship and process. CHC's overtly Christian ethos represents an advantage in this respect as it allows an explicit naming and consideration of issues related to spirituality and its place in the experience of CHC students and the practice of counselling more broadly. While the counselling courses are clear about the use of Christian worldview and spirituality as important frames through which to reflect on and engage with the development of the person of the student counsellor and her or his associated counselling practice, it is recognised that a Christian worldview also requires a respect for and hospitality towards other expressions of faith and spirituality.

Recognition of the need to prepare students to work appropriately and inclusively with clients from diverse backgrounds

Australian society is becoming increasingly diverse and pluralistic in composition and perspective. As a result, counsellors will encounter clients with a broad range of backgrounds, experiences and views. In particular, professional counselling practitioners will work with clients with diverse cultural, ethnic and sexual identities, religious and spiritual views and practices and socioeconomic backgrounds, as well as people with serious mental health issues and physical, developmental, learning and intellectual disabilities. Often, the experiences, values and choices of counsellors will be very different to those of their potential clients. As a result, the counselling courses are designed to equip student counsellors with the knowledge, skills and experience necessary to work ethically, sensitively, inclusively and respectfully with clients from diverse backgrounds within an increasingly pluralistic society.

Facilitation of practice frameworks that are specific and appropriate for each individual student

The counselling courses emphasise the importance of supporting and facilitating each individual's journey towards maturity and wholeness. Similarly, a Christian worldview can be argued as advocating the importance of allowing each person to discover, develop and use his or her unique talents and gifts in service to his or her community. As a result, the Bachelor of Counselling and Master of Counselling are designed to assist student counsellors to intentionally and critically construct their own personal counselling frameworks as they progress through their studies and accompanying practical experiences.

The importance of ethics and ethical practice

A common emphasis shared by both a Christian worldview perspective and the counselling profession is the importance of ethical behaviour and decision-making with the often-vulnerable people who present for counselling. Consistent with a relational philosophy and Christian worldview position, counselling students at CHC are not only exposed to ethical codes but are given opportunity to evaluate the differing ontological, epistemological and axiological bases of ethics, ethical behaviour and ethical decision-making. In particular, they are invited to personally and professionally reflect on what it means to be an ethical person-practitioner. This includes reflecting on their personal and professional competence, which is evaluated throughout the counselling courses.

2.2.1   Personal development of counselling students

Based on the rationale for CHC's counselling courses, opportunities for personal development and increasing self-awareness are provided as part of the Bachelor of Counselling and Master of Counselling courses. One of the most important and valued places where this is available is through personal counselling experience. The nature of the courses has the potential to bring to the surface unresolved issues in students' lives, at which point having counselling available assists students to establish a value of self-care and ongoing self-reflection. Being a client also provides a unique perspective on counselling where students can learn about the helpful and unhelpful processes that occur in counselling.

All counselling students are required to undergo 30 hours of their own personal counselling. At least 20 of these hours must be completed before students enrol in the first practicum unit in the respective courses.

2.2.2   Professional counselling associations

Psychotherapy and Counselling Federation of Australia (PACFA)

The Psychotherapy and Counselling Federation of Australia (PACFA) is a peak body for member associations, branches and colleges, and individuals who meet the standards developed by consensus as appropriate for professional practitioners within the disciplines of Counselling and Psychotherapy in the Australian community.

PACFA was originally a federation of professional associations of psychotherapists and counsellors formed after lengthy national consultation involving many of the leading educators in these fields. In 2015, the organisational structure of PACFA changed to allow individual membership.

Both the Bachelor Counselling and Master of Counselling are accredited by PACFA. This means that, upon completing either award, CHC counselling graduates can become Provisional Members of PACFA member associations, branches or colleges, or become individual members of PACFA.

More information is available on the PACFA website.

Christian Counsellors Association of Australia (CCAA)

The Christian Counsellors Association of Australia (CCAA) is a nationwide federation of state based CCAAs that promotes and maintains professional standards of quality counselling across Australia. The aim of the CCAA is to support and encourage counsellors to integrate their Christian faith with their practice at a professional level. The CCAA has grown as an increasing number of Christians seek accreditation with a supportive body that is conducted on faith principles and has high standards of excellence. The rise of counselling in Australia as a viable profession has become possible with associations such as the CCAA not only demanding high standards from their members, but also encouraging appropriate and relevant discussion of the Christian faith.

The CCAA is a member association of PACFA, with branches in every state.

The CCAA:

- conforms to the standards of training and supervised experience and ethical standards required by PACFA;
- requires theological training (or equivalent) to enable counsellors to address spiritual and faith issues as part of the counselling process;
- provides professional development through meetings and conferences, and by continuing supervision; and
- accepts counsellors of many modalities (eg psychodynamic, cognitive-behavioural) and client groups (eg individual, marriage, family).

Members work in a variety of religious and secular organisations and in private practice.

Bachelor of Counselling and Master of Counselling graduates are eligible to join CCAA at Graduate level.

More information is available on the CCAA website.

2.3   Rationale for the social sciences courses

Broadly speaking, CHC's courses in the social sciences reflect a desire to engage meaningfully and positively with the important questions of human experience, with the development of the individual, the improvement of society, the development of leaders in the fields and the development of skills and knowledge in the people-helping professions.

CHC's courses all share a distinctive emphasis in that studies are founded in and integrated through the application of a Christian worldview. A Christian perspective implies that the development of intellectual capacities should not take place in isolation, but in the context of an understanding of the relevance of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ for the Christian student. The course is thus structured to ensure that students are challenged by the qualities of Christian discipleship, the freedom and responsibilities of Christian maturity, and the call to Christian leadership and ministry.

In addition, the various streams offered within the undergraduate course aims to offer vocational emphases in areas including disability and aged care, family support and child protection and human behaviour, all of which are growing fields of vocational need and opportunity. These vocational elements are designed to develop practical skills and theoretical foundations for those working in these contexts and with a range of people within various institutional contexts.

Many of the opportunities for full time employment are in community service-oriented settings catering to the needs of a diverse range of people and community groups. Graduates will be equipped to work with groups of people in various settings including aged-care, youth and community centres, youth shelters, centres for people with disabilities, in child protection services, local and international aid and development agencies, for family and community service agencies of different levels of government, schools, hospitals, corrective service institutions, sporting organisations and industry.

At the postgraduate level, the courses meet the growing demands of the professional workplace for those who already possess foundational understandings of social sciences professional workplace contexts, including the acquisition of advanced leadership knowledge and skills within specific social sciences professional practice contexts. Contemporary social realities require an ever-deepening understanding of professional social sciences practices that enable practitioners to engage more successfully with their spheres of influence.

It is expected that postgraduate employment opportunities will mainly occur in two areas. Firstly, graduates may remain in their current social sciences fields but seek further professional advancement; secondly, graduates will gain the credentials for engagement with leadership roles in a broader range of social sciences fields. Hence, these courses equip practitioners in social sciences fields to better handle the roles and responsibilities that potential career advancement may bring: for example, through critical thinking and reflection, theoretical understandings of team and project leadership and other leadership skills, Christian worldview integration and application, and research skills and experience in

Thus, the Social Sciences portfolio of courses fills a need in contemporary society and provide graduates with a broad set of skills and understandings that are relevant numerous contemporary ministry and professional outcomes.

2.3.1   Professional social sciences associations

Students who complete an approved pathway in the Bachelor of Human Services (SS19) are eligible for membership with the Australian Community Workers Association (ACWA). Information regarding ACWA, the benefits of membership and the process for applying is available on the ACWA website.

Section 3: Undergraduate courses information

3.1   Courses and modes
3.2   Diploma of Social Science (SS04)
3.3   Bachelor of Human Services (SS19) [formerly Bachelor of Applied Social Science (SS17)]
3.4   Bachelor of Counselling (SS18)

3.1   Courses and modes

The undergraduate courses offered by the School of Social Sciences are:

- Diploma of Social Science (SS04)
- Bachelor of Human Services (SS19) [formerly Bachelor of Applied Social Science (SS17)]
- Bachelor of Counselling (SS18)

These courses are available in the internal mode and in a multi-modal capacity; that is, units in the courses are delivered in the internal and/or external modes. Students may enrol in units within their courses in either mode (as delivered with particular semesters); however, a number of the units in the courses are delivered in the internal mode only (as indicated by * in the sections below), which requires that students attend on campus classes. Units that are delivered in the internal mode normally involve three hours of scheduled classes per week; however, some internal units may be scheduled as intensives in which the contact hours are condensed into a number of whole or part days. Units that are delivered in the external mode are supported by learning resources that are provided to students electronically via a Moodle™ web page.

Please note that not all units are available in every semester, and modes of delivery can vary. For advice regarding the availability of units, modes of delivery and any unit prerequisite requirements, students should consult their course coordinators. Sample outlines for units in the undergraduate courses are available on the CHC website.

3.2   Diploma of Social Science (SS04)

The Diploma of Social Science is a one-year course (full-time equivalent) and is available on both a full-time and part-time basis. It is designed to provide students with practical and theoretical knowledge and concepts with some depth relating to a Human Services discipline area.

The maximum time allowed for completing the Diploma of Social Science is five years.

The Diploma of Social Science is nested within both the Bachelor of Human Services and the Bachelor of Counselling and comprises the first year (full-time equivalent) of those courses. It provides an early exit point from those awards as well as being a stand-alone qualification.

Students who successfully complete the Diploma of Social Science may apply to enter the Bachelor of Human Services or the Bachelor of Counselling. Students who are enrolled in the Bachelor of Human Services or the Bachelor of Counselling may exit with the Diploma of Social Science, subject to the completion of course requirements.

3.3   Bachelor of Human Services (SS19) [formerly Bachelor of Applied Social Science (SS17)]

The Bachelor of Human Services is a three-year course (full-time equivalent) and is available on both a full-time and part-time basis. It is designed to provide students with broad and coherent knowledge and skills for professional work and future learning in Human Services discipline areas. Alongside core units, students select a specialisation as the focus of their study and undertake either a practicum stream or a coursework stream.

The maximum time allowed for completing the Bachelor of Human Services is 10 years.

The Diploma of Social Science is nested within the Bachelor of Human Services and comprises the first year (full-time equivalent) of that course. It provides an early exit point from this award as well as being a stand-alone qualification.

Students who successfully complete the Diploma of Social Science may apply to enter the Bachelor of Human Services or the Bachelor of Counselling. Students who are enrolled in the Bachelor of Human Services or the Bachelor of Counselling may exit with the Diploma of Social Science, subject to the completion of course requirements.

Course pathways:	The Diploma of Social Science comprises the first year (full-time equivalent) of the Bachelor of Human Services. Students who enter the Diploma of Social Science may transfer into the Bachelor of Human Services. Students who graduate with the Diploma of Social Science may articulate into the Bachelor of Human Services. Students who are enrolled in the Bachelor of Human Services may exit early from this course with the Diploma of Social Science (subject to course rules).

3.4   Bachelor of Counselling (SS18)

The Bachelor of Counselling is a three-year course (full-time equivalent) and is available on both a full-time and part-time basis. It is designed to serve the need of the institutional church, individual Christian clergy and lay-people, and members of the wider community to gain an appropriate qualification to offer effective professional counselling services.

The maximum time allowed for completing the Bachelor of Counselling is 10 years.

The Diploma of Social Science is nested within the Bachelor of Counselling and provides an early exit point from that award as well as being a stand-alone qualification. Students who successfully complete the Diploma of Social Science may apply to enter the Bachelor of Counselling. Students who are enrolled in the Bachelor of Counselling may exit with the Diploma of Social Science, subject to the completion of course requirements.

Course title:	Bachelor of Counselling
Course structure:	The course requires 240 credit points for completion, comprising 220 credit points of core units and 20 credit points of elective units. A standard unit carrying a weighting of 10 credit points has a semester workload of 150 hours, which includes aspects such as scheduled contact time, personal study, preparation of assessment tasks and examinations (as applicable). The standard full-time load for the course is four units (40 credit points) per semester. Part-time students normally undertake one or two units per semester. To qualify for the award of the Bachelor of Counselling a student must accrue at least 240 credit points, including satisfactory completion of the core units noted below. Not more than one grade of Pass Conceded (PC) will be allowed for credit towards the award.

Section 4: Postgraduate courses information

4.1   Courses and modes
4.2   Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership (SS31)
4.3   Graduate Certificate in Applied Neuroscience (SS32) [formerly Graduate Certificate in Neuropsychotherapy (SS33)]
4.4   Master of Counselling (SS51)
4.6   Master of Social Science Leadership (SS54)

4.1   Courses and modes

The postgraduate courses offered by the School of Social Sciences are:

- Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership (SS31)
- Graduate Certificate in Applied Neuroscience (SS32) [formerly Graduate Certificate in Neuropsychotherapy (SS33)]
- Master of Counselling (SS51)
- Master of Social Science Leadership (SS54)

These courses are available in the internal mode and in a multi-modal capacity; that is, units in the courses are offered in the internal and/or external modes. Students may enrol in units within their courses in either mode (as offered); however, a number of the units in many of the courses are available in the internal mode only (as indicated by * in the sections below), which requires that students attend on campus classes. Units offered in the internal mode normally involve three hours of scheduled classes per week; however, some internal units may be scheduled as intensives in which the contact hours are condensed into a number of whole or part days. Units offered in the external mode are supported by learning resources that are provided to students electronically via a Moodle™ web page.

Please note that not all units are offered in every semester, and modes of offering can vary. For advice regarding the availability of units, modes of offering and any unit prerequisite requirements, students should consult their Course Coordinator. Sample outlines for all units in the post-graduate courses are available on the CHC website.

4.2   Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership (SS31)

The Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership is a one-semester course (full-time equivalent) and is available on a part-time basis only. The course is designed to facilitate the acquisition of advanced knowledge and skills related to a specific field of social sciences practice, as well as critical thinking and reflection. In addition, it incorporates a strong leadership focus with a theoretical understanding and practical underpinning of contextual social sciences engagement and Christian worldview integration. It is expected that graduates of the course will remain in their current human services fields but seek professional advancement or that they will gain the credentials for engagement with a broader range of human services fields.

The maximum time allowed for completing the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership is five years.

The Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership is nested within the Master of Social Science Leadership and provides an early exit point from that award as well as being a stand-alone qualification. Students who successfully complete the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership may apply to enter the Master of Social Science Leadership. Students who are enrolled in the Master of Social Science Leadership may exit with the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership, subject to the completion of course requirements.

This course can be completed entirely in external mode of study, which makes it an attractive choice for students who do not live within travelling distance of CHC. Please see Section 1.3 for details on internal and external modes of study.

Other protocols:	• Students must obtain a passing grade in the nominated prerequisite(s) before enrolling in a unit (see Section 5.1). • With the approval of the Course Coordinator, students may include other relevant units within the course.
Course pathways:	• The Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership comprises the first semester (full-time equivalent) of the Master of Social Science Leadership. • Students who enter the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership may transfer into the Master of Social Science Leadership. • Students who graduate with the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership may articulate into the Master of Social Science Leadership. • Students who are enrolled in the Master of Social Science Leadership may exit early from this course with the Graduate Certificate in Social Science Leadership (subject to course rules).

4.3   Graduate Certificate in Applied Neuroscience (SS32) [formerly Graduate Certificate in Neuropsychotherapy (SS33)]

The Graduate Certificate in Applied Neuroscience is a one-semester course (full-time equivalent) and is available on a part-time basis only. It is designed to provide students with the knowledge and skills of neuropsychotherapy that will better equip them for their current field of practice. Neuropsychotherapy is a multidisciplinary perspective on mental well-being that looks to neuroscience and related fields of human biology and psychology to enhance the clinical practice of talking therapies and other related fields. Scientists have been able to provide unprecedented explanations of brain functioning through recent and rapid advances in medical imaging technology. By integrating the findings of neuroscience with the more traditional emotional, cognitive, behavioural and social knowledge of psychology, neuropsychotherapy provides a framework for understanding the human condition from a holistic perspective that has the potential to transform professional practice in a wide range of disciplines such as psychology, medicine, psychiatry, counselling, education, human resource management, social work, nursing, and business/life coaching.

Graduate opportunities include fulfilling professional expectations of counselling and other industry registering associations, and career advancement in a current field of practice. For some, this course may be the entry into a "second training" in the counselling field, giving them the demonstrated knowledge experience required by employers for a more specialised position. It may also provide students from allied disciplines such as teaching or nursing with specialised knowledge and experience that will enhance their practice.

The maximum time allowed for the completion of the Graduate Certificate in Applied Neuroscience is five years.

4.4   Master of Counselling (SS51)

The Master of Counselling is a two-year course (full-time equivalent) and is available on both a full-time and part-time basis. It is designed as a 'first training' course to serve the needs of the institutional church, individual Christian clergy and laypeople, and members of the wider community to gain the appropriate qualifications to offer effective and professional counselling services. It brings students to a point of professional expertise commensurate with the standards required for fulfilment of the academic requirements for graduate membership of the relevant professional organisations (such as the Queensland Counsellors' Association of Australia, the Christian Counsellors' Association of Australia, and the Australian Counselling Association), as well as eligibility for listing on the Australian Register of Counsellors and Psychotherapists (ARCAP).

It is expected that graduates from this course will find employment in the community services sector, in church and para-church settings, and in private practice. Students in the Master of Counselling will focus in their electives on a specific area of counselling (child and adolescent, family and relationships, or trauma), which will give them the demonstrated skills and knowledge demanded by the people-helping industry as it increasingly focuses on working with specific client groups. There is also an increasing demand for counselling skills as part of a broader job description, complementary to case management, personal and family support, which opens up another range of potential employment opportunities for graduates.

The maximum time allowed for the completion of the Master of Counselling is ten years.

Table 6: Course Requirements – Master of Counselling

Course title:	Master of Counselling
Course structure:	The course requires 160 credit points for completion, comprising 130 credit points of core units and 30 credit points of elective units. The areas of study from which students may choose elective units are: • Child and Adolescent Counselling; • Family and Relationship Counselling; and • Trauma Counselling.
Course structure (continued):	Students must complete a minimum of 20 credit points of elective units in the same area of study. Students who complete the first elective unit in area of study and then to change to a different area of study are to complete the first two elective units in the second area of study. A standard unit carrying a weighting of 10 credit points has a semester workload of 150 hours, which includes aspects such as scheduled contact time, personal study, preparation of assessment tasks and examinations (as applicable). The standard full-time load for the course is four units (40 credit points) per semester. Part-time students normally undertake one or two units per semester. 4.5   Master of Social Science Leadership (SS54)

The Master of Social Science Leadership is a 1.5-year course (full-time equivalent) and is available on both a full-time and part-time basis. It is designed to facilitate the acquisition of advanced knowledge and skills related to a specific field of social sciences practice, as well as critical thinking and reflection. In addition, it incorporates a strong leadership focus with a theoretical understanding and practical underpinning of contextual social sciences engagement and Christian worldview integration. Finally, students will undertake research-related studies within the course. This element of the course is designed to enable students to acquire, with appropriate supervision, the skills and knowledge necessary to plan and undertake research and to disseminate findings related to a substantial research project within a specific social sciences discipline. It is expected that graduates of the course will remain in their current human services fields but seek professional advancement or that they will gain the credentials for engagement with a broader range of human services fields.

The maximum time allowed for the completion of the Master of Social Science Leadership is ten years.

Section 6: Resource requirements

6.1   Computing facilities

6.2   Textbooks

6.3   Other requirements

6.1   Computing facilities

All students will require computer and internet access for engaging with their studies. A limited number of computers are available for student use at the Learning Hub.

Students at CHC are assigned a dedicated email address and this will be used to deliver important information and documentation. You will be assigned individualised login details for using Library services and the Moodle™ learning platform. You are also assigned individual space on the student server for the purpose of data storage. You are expected to check your email and access the Moodle™ site for relevant class materials and online activities on a regular basis.

All courses offered by CHC require the ongoing use of computer technology. To engage fully with the learning experience for the duration of their studies, students will need to have access to and be able to use internet-connected devices and have reliable connectivity to the internet. Students are expected to find, use and disseminate information, upload and download documents and video and audio files, prepare assessments and presentations, communicate with faculty using CHC student email, and manage and back up files.

6.2   Textbooks

Each semester a textbook list is published on the CHC website along with information about where to purchase the texts. Information about required textbooks is also included in unit outlines. Students will be expected to have all required textbooks available, to read them as required by the lecturer and to use them as relevant in the preparation of assessment tasks. While the CHC Library does maintain copies of all textbooks, class sizes and reading requirements may make it impossible to access the required information as needed for classes in a timely fashion without a personal copy of the textbook.

6.3   Other requirements

Information regarding any additional specific requirements is published in the 'Specialist resource requirements' section in unit outlines and/or assessment booklets.

Section 7: Staff contacts

7.1   Staff contacts

Knowing who to contact means that you will be able to deliver and receive communication more effectively. The table below indicates the person(s) to whom you should direct your enquiries depending upon the issue involved.

While all staff may be consulted about general matters and questions, certain issues are the responsibility of the staff members listed below. If in doubt about whom you should approach regarding an issue, please ask at the Student Administration Office.
